Insurance pays for photovoltaic panels

Overview

Most homeowners insurance policies treat roof-mounted solar panels as permanent fixtures, similar to built-in appliances or security systems. This means they typically fall under your dwelling coverage—the same protection that covers your home's structure. After all, solar panels are a major investment, and protecting. The right solar panel insurance coverage ensures your system is fully protected and that you won't face steep repair or replacement costs out of pocket. Solar panels can pay for themselves through energy bill savings in many places, and the return on investment can be high. Insurance — whether through your homeowners. Before taxes, an installed rooftop solar energy system can cost anywhere between $15,000 and $25,000, according to the Center for Sustainable Energy. Paying to replace a damaged system could be a big financial burden for some homeowners.
